BRUNSWICK COMMERCIAL AND GOVERNMENT PRODUCTS INTRODUCES LARGEST JUSTICE MODEL

EDGEWATER, Fla. (March 18, 2010) – Brunswick Commercial and Government Products (BCGP), a leading manufacturer of commercial and government watercraft, today introduced the 37-foot Justice— the largest Boston Whaler model ever built.

The 370 Justice features a center console design for unobstructed 360 degree access to all areas of the boat. Its deep-V hull is designed to yield a smooth ride, despite rough seas. Reverse chines serve to deflect spray for drier rides while also providing quicker recovery between waves and additional lateral stability. Like all BCGP Boston Whaler models, the 370 Justice features unsinkable Unibond™ construction and fortified laminate schedules for commercial and military applications.

The standard integrated windshield and hardtop system is designed to withstand harsh conditions, while affording superior visibility and weather protection for the captain and crew. The face of the console can accommodate dual 14” screens and additional electronics necessary for surveillance and other special operations. Standard helm seating features three stand-up bolster seats with flip down seat bases. Multiple leaning post options are available.

The spacious console interior features a head, sleeping berth, sink and microwave. A standard generator and cabin air conditioning ensure those extended overnight assignments don’t feel even longer. A 34-inch dive door is standard to facilitate water rescues, diving operations or boarding access. Lockable, lighted gear storage in the bow can secure multiple dive tanks upright, rescue equipment, and other bulky equipment.

“In a triple outboard configuration, the 370 Justice has the horsepower for border and coastline patrol, drug interdiction, and offshore homeland security activities,” said Jeremy Davis, BCGP sales manager. “With the amenities on board and a 450-gallon fuel capacity, teams can stay on the water longer and more comfortably.”

Many options including crash rails, gun mounts and tow posts, are available to allow agencies to customize the boat for specific missions.
